

University of Silesia in Katowice

Title of the course: Leadership in science

Amount in hours: 15 hours

Type of the course: – open facultative course

Author of the course / lecturer:

Vilma ZYDZIUNAITE,

PhD (social sciences, education), PhD (health sciences, nursing), Professor, Educational Research Institute, Vytautas Magnus University, Kaunas, Lithuania

Purpose of the course: To reveal the multi-layered nature of a scientist's intellectual leadership in higher education.

Content

1. Profit and value of higher education in which researchers implement intellectual leadership
2. The need for researcher's intellectual leadership in higher education school
3. Factors for implementing the intellectual leadership: personality / individual, team and institution
4. Challenges for researcher's intellectual leadership in higher education
5. Intellectual leadership of a scientist in research dissemination
6. Variety of leadership colorer within the disciplines and in higher education context
7. Features of everyday scientist's intellectual leadership in higher education
8. The mission of a scientist's intellectual leadership in higher education
9. The scientist's values in managing the research through intellectual leadership in higher education
10. Academic freedom, academic duty and roles of a scientist by implementing the intellectual leadership in higher education
11. The scientist's intellectual leadership while performing the pedagogical activities in higher education
12. Self-identity of a scientist with the role of intellectual leader in higher education
13. Visibility of a scientist's intellectual leadership within the scientific activities in higher education